

DAVEY URGES NEW NON-TAX PROGRAM

GOP Leaders Disbelieve Hoover's Disavowal Ambitions for 1936

WASHINGTON — Republican Congressional leaders bluntly put no credence in Herbert Hoover's disavowal of 1936 political ambitions.

Their conviction that secretly he has his eye fixed on next year's nomination is as firmly fixed as their determination to do everything in their power to see that he does not get it.

This undercover antipathy is one of the most remarkable phenomena in the contemporary political scene.

Resentment against the former President is as widespread and fresh among Congressional Republicans today as when he left the White House 25 months ago.

It is the one thing on which the Old Guarders and insurgents are agreed.

Asked to comment on Hoover's latest blast, Senate Floor Leader Charles McNary remarked: "I am not interested in anything that gentleman has to say."

This sums up the attitude of Congressional Republicanism toward its former chieftain.

Not only are Hoover's opinions resented, but his persistence in airing them is considered a handicap to the party's chances of staging a comeback.

North Dakota's Senator "Jerry" Nye prominently mentioned as a vice-presidential possibility next year, gave terse expression to this feeling at a recent gathering of Republican leaders.

"If it should come to pass that it's a case of Hoover or Roosevelt," he said, "there will be only one choice and it won't be Hoover."

Author

Huey Long is writing a new book.

Taking a leaf from Upton Sinclair's famous campaign document "I, Governor of California," the Kingfish is at work on a volume which will outline in detail exactly what he will do "when" he becomes President of the United States.

A title for the projected opus has not as yet been chosen.

A suggested one—much favored by Huey—is "My First Year in the White House."

Huey plans to open the book with his taking the oath of office on the steps of the Capitol, to include his inaugural address, the names of the men who will compose his Cabinet, the message to the special session of Congress, which he would convene, and the legislation he would ask it to enact to put his "share-the-wealth" program into operation.

Sinclair sold over 250,000 copies of his book. Huey thinks that a sale of 10,000,000 copies of his volume is a reasonable estimate.

Difficult Problem

The President is finding the task of strengthening his White House secretarial staff no easy matter.

Congressional leaders and inner council advisers with whom he has discussed the problem vary widely as to the type of man he should pick.

Some of the Brain Trusters favor Charles A. Beard, the historian.

Another group is urging the selection of Frank Walker.

They point out that while the wealthy, publicity-shy former head of the National Emergency Council is a conservation, he is also an excellent personal terms with the left-wingers.

LEGISLATURE IS ASKED FOR MORATORIUM

Governor Follows Campaign Plan in Effort to Assist Schools

SUPPORT IS URGED

Sees no Need for New Taxes Under Plan

COLUMBUS, April 2.—In a terse message to the Ohio legislature today—his first on the subject of taxation—Governor Davey today offered a plan by which he hopes to make additional tax measures at this time unnecessary.

The plan he sent up to the general assembly, accompanied by bills to carry out its purpose, revived the so-called bond moratorium idea he advocated during the last election, a plan which the Democratic party refused to incorporate in its platform.

Extraordinary requirements of relief, old age pensions and the schools, he said, make it necessary to raise "thirty or thirty-five million dollars beyond the sums already provided."

Stand Undetermined

He warned the assembly that should it decide to exempt food and clothing from the general retail sales tax, it will then be necessary to levy an additional $24,000,000 of new taxes. He did come out either for or against such exemptions.

The governor's plan for providing the "thirty or thirty-five million dollars" more that will be needed even if the sales tax law is left intact, he outlined as follows:

"1. To provide the necessary fifteen million dollars or more for unemployment relief, I propose that the issuance of county relief bonds be authorized, which can be financed out of the extra one per cent excise tax on public utilities. This tax yields about $2,400,000 per year, and would be ample to pay 10 per cent of the principal annually and all of the interest, on county relief bonds."

"2. To take care of the acute problems of local governments, including schools, counties, cities, villages and townships, in addition to the help already provided through the sales tax, I propose that these local subdivisions be authorized to postpone, for two years, the payments on principal of maturing bond issues, and use this revenue for operating expenses."

PAROCHIAL AID VOTE DELAYED

COLUMBUS, April 2.—Senate leaders today bowed to the house for initial action on the parochial school issue after senate finance committee members side-stepped a vote on the Davis bill that has stirred religious and school interests to "exert powerful pressure."

First test of the strength of supporters of state aid to church schools, scheduled to have been taken by the senate finance committee last night on the Davis bill proposing $3,000,000 state aid to parochial schools and $2,000,000 to colleges with teacher training courses, was postponed by Sen. W. H. Hermer (D) of Morrowville, chairman of the finance committee, without resolution.

MOSIER FEARS NECESSITY OF NEW OHIO TAX

Paints Drab Picture of Finances in State; Much Money is Needed

WROTE LIQUOR BILL

Department Out of Red After Single Year

Expressing fear that new taxes on incomes, luxuries, public utilities and chain stores will have to be levied to "make ends meet" in the state government, Harold J. Mosier of Cleveland, lieutenant governor of Ohio, made an interesting though pessimistic talk before the Kiwanis club Monday evening.

Mr. Mosier filled the place on the program originally assigned to Senator Paul Gingham, who was unable to attend because of the committee meeting on the parochial aid bill in the upper house.

Mr. Mosier said: "We now expect to receive $55,000,000 from the sales tax, we had figured on $60,000,000 and hoped for $80,000,000. With this amount added to the treasury we still need $15,000,000 for the state's share of relief money. Then $12,000,000 to $15,000,000 will be needed for schools if the house passes the foundation bill scheduled for vote this week. Take into consideration that there is much agitation for exemption of food and clothing from the sales tax. If food and clothing are taken off the list the state will have to raise $50,000,000 somewhere and the only solution is new taxes."

Easy to Vote Money

He went on to declare that $10,000,000 more will be needed for old age pensions. "It is easy to vote new appropriations, to be free and charitable, but those who vote the appropriations are reluctant about providing money to pay them," Mr. Mosier said.

ANOTHER TRIAL FOR NINE NEGRO HOBOES

MONTGOMERY, Ala., April 2.—Once again the "Scottsboro boys," nine youthful negro hoboos who have spent four years in prison as appeals from their successive convictions were carried to the U. S. supreme court to score two reversals, must stand trial for the alleged mass attack on two white mill girls aboard a freight train in northeast Alabama March 25, 1931.

Lieut. Governor Thomas E. Knight, who as attorney general of Alabama, prosecuted the three series of trials, today prepared to seek new indictments against the supreme court's action yesterday, in setting aside for a second time sentences on Haywood Patterson and Clarence Norris, two of the defendants.

MRS. KNEECE GIVEN DECREE OF DIVORCE

Revising his former order which refused a divorce and ordered alimony paid Mrs. Nellie Kneece for the support of a daughter, Judge J. W. Adkins today had granted Mrs. Kneece a divorce from Albert Kneece for extreme cruelty and gross neglect.

The mother was given custody of a daughter and the father of a son. No alimony was ordered.

The divorce suit was hard fought with a number of witnesses being called. Prior to the filing of the petition Mrs. Kneece had been charged with insanity by her husband. She had countered with an assault and battery charge. Neither charge carried much weight in court.

Greeno Accommodates Visits Police Station

Arch Greeno, of Stoutsville, was a very obliging gentleman Monday afternoon. While Chief W. F. McCrady and Officer Fred Fitzpatrick were chatting in the mayor's office, the aforesaid Mr. Greeno sauntered into the office in a slightly intoxicated condition and quickly was deposited in the cellar.

He came to tell Mayor W. B. Cady he had gone to Weldon alley, laid down and went to sleep and was "rolled" of his money, $14 or $15.

REAMS CITES PRISON RULE

Opposed Any Sympathy Toward Licavoli in Prison, He Testifies

COLUMBUS, April 2.—Testimony purporting to show the extensive gangster activities of Thomas (Yonnie) Licavoli, notorious Toledo underworld chieftain, and how he allegedly directed his gang's activities from within the walls of Ohio penitentiary, was given today by Frazier Reams, silver-haired Lucas county prosecutor, in the civil service commission ouster hearing here against former prison Warden Preston E. Thomas.

"Yonnie Licavoli," Reams declared to emphasize his charge of negligence against former Warden Thomas, "was the worst and most efficient gangster in Toledo."

"We never had a gang killing in Toledo until Licavoli arrived," asserted Reams. "After he came there, we had 13 in three years."

The Lucas-co prosecutor, who once headed Gov. Martin L. Davey's state senate prison investigating committee, began his testimony in clear, ringing tones by citing the conviction of Licavoli for complicity in four gangster killings in Toledo, adding that the gangster himself was received at the penitentiary on Nov. 10, last year.

Five days later, according to Reams, he wrote a report to Thomas declaring that Licavoli was "intelligent, shrewd, deceitful and 'lame' and expressing opposition to any show of sympathy toward the hoodlum."

FUGITIVE, FREE SINCE FEB. 10, TRAPPED HERE

Oakley E. Wyatt, 34, of Portsmouth, Goes Back to Prison Farm

CORN THIEF CAUGHT

Ring Working in Many Counties Broken

Hunted since Feb. 10 when he escaped the Lebanon prison farm, Oakley Earl Wyatt, 34, of Portsmouth, was taken to the London prison today after his capture here Monday afternoon.

Wyatt, who first gave his name as Wilson, admitted his identity while officers were preparing to fingerprint him in the city building.

The escaped convict was given no chance to put up a fight. He was caught walking south at Pickaway and Watt-sts by members of the police and sheriff's departments.

Wyatt was seen riding on a Norfolk & Western freight train when it passed through Ashville Monday afternoon. A local man, whose name was not disclosed by officers, but who had gone to school with Wyatt in Portsmouth, identified him and having read of his escape, called local officers.

Walked Through City

They notified railroad officials to stop the freight train and they did but north of town while the officers expected it to be stopped in the south end. When the train stopped Wyatt left it and was seen walking toward the center of town. The officers began to search for him and found him at the intersection. Deputies Miller Flinnell and Bob Armstrong were on him before he even suspected he was known.

Wyatt was taken to the city building where he admitted his identity.

He was sentenced to the penitentiary July 4, 1933 from Scioto-co for a one to 15 year term for burglary.

He was held by Police Chief W. F. McCrady until prison farm officials came for him.

The man who notified police of his appearance will receive a $25 reward from the prison farm.

Taxicab Driver Jailed in Theft

Louis White, 23, Columbus, is held in the county jail where a grand larceny charge will be filed against him in connection with theft of 150 bushels of corn from C. E. Cromley.

White, according to Sheriff Charles Radcliff, has confessed taking the corn with Herbert Clark, who has been transferred to London to face charges in Madison-co.

The Columbus man was captured Monday afternoon as he was leaving the home of his brother in Marion. He was prepared for a getaway, the sheriff said.

Accompanying Radcliff were Sheriff Gorman Clark and Deputy Earl Lamb, of Madison-co, and Deputy W. H. Willis, of Marion-co.

White's arrest cleans up a ring which has been preying on granaries in central and southern Ohio for several months.

Most of the persons arrested are held in Madison-co.

REAMS CITES PRISON RULE

Opposed Any Sympathy Toward Licavoli in Prison, He Testifies

COLUMBUS, April 2—Testimony purporting to show the extensive gangster activities of Thomas (Yonnie) Licavoli, notorious Toledo underworld chieftain, and how he allegedly directed his gang's activities from within the walls of Ohio penitentiary, was given today by Frazier Reams, silver-haired Lucas county prosecutor, in the civil service commission ouster hearing here against former prison Warden Preston E. Thomas.

"Yonnie Licavoli," Reams declared to emphasize his charge of negligence against former Warden Thomas, "was the worst and most efficient gangster in Toledo."

"We never had a gang killing in Toledo until Licavoli arrived," asserted Reams. "After he came there, we had 13 in three years."

The Lucas-co prosecutor, who once headed Gov. Martin L. Davey's state senate prison investigating committee, began his testimony in clear, ringing tones by citing the conviction of Licavoli for complicity in four gangster killings in Toledo, adding that the gangster himself was received at the penitentiary on Nov. 10, last year.

Five days later, according to Reams, he wrote a report to Thomas declaring that Licavoli was "intelligent, shrewd, deceitful and canny" and expressing opposition to any show of sympathy toward the hoodlum.

FUGITIVE, FREE SINCE FEB. 10, TRAPPED HERE

Oakley E. Wyatt, 34, of Portsmouth, Goes Back to Prison Farm

CORN THIEF CAUGHT

Ring Working in Many Counties Broken

Hunted since Feb. 10 when he escaped the Lebanon prison farm, Oakley Earl Wyatt, 34, of Portsmouth, was taken to the London prison today after his capture here Monday afternoon.

Wyatt, who first gave his name as Wilson, admitted his identity while officers were preparing to fingerprint him in the city building.

The escaped convict was given no chance to put up a fight. He was caught walking south at Pickaway and Watt-sts by members of the police and sheriff's departments.

Wyatt was seen riding on a Norfolk & Western freight train when it passed through Ashville Monday afternoon. A local man, whose name was not disclosed by officers, but who had gone to school with Wyatt in Portsmouth, identified him and having read of his escape, called local officers.

Walked Through City

They notified railroad officials to stop the freight train and they did but north of town while the officers expected it to be stopped in the south end. When the train stopped Wyatt left it and was seen walking toward the center of town. The officers began to search for him and found him at the intersection. Deputies Miller Fissell and Bob Armstrong were on him before he even suspected he was known.

Wyatt was taken to the city building where he admitted his identity.

He was sentenced to the penitentiary July 4, 1933 from Scioto-co for a one to 15 year term for burglary.

He was held by Police Chief W. F. McCrady until prison farm officials came for him.

The man who notified police of his appearance will receive a $25 reward from the prison farm.

Taxicab Driver Jailed in Theft

Louis White, 23, Columbus, is held in the county jail where a grand larceny charge will be filed against him in connection with theft of 150 bushels of corn from C. E. Cromley.

White, according to Sheriff Charles Radcliff, has confessed taking the corn with Herbert Clark, who has been transferred to London to face charges in Madison-co.

The Columbus man was captured Monday afternoon as he was leaving the home of his brother in Marion. He was prepared for a getaway, the sheriff said.

Accompanying Radcliff were Sheriff Gorman Clark and Deputy Earl Lamb, of Madison-co, and Deputy W. H. Willis, of Marion-co.

White's arrest cleans up a ring which has been preying on granaries in central and southern Ohio for several months.

Most of the persons arrested are held in Madison-co.

County Students Guests Of Hi-Y at Fine Meeting

Members of the Hi-Y club of the local high school were hosts to boy students of the various high schools in the county at a banquet, Monday evening, in the Methodist Episcopal church basement. Seventy were present.

Ten boys and one faculty member of each school in the county were invited in order to acquaint them with work of the Hi-Y and it is hoped that Hi-Y clubs will be formed in these schools next year as the outgrowth of the meeting.

Schools represented were Ashville, Walnut-twp., Jackson-twp., Washington-twp. and Williamsport.

The dinner was served by the Ladies' Guild of the church and the invocation given by Rev. H. A. Sayre.

The boys of the various schools were introduced and G. D. McDowell, superintendent of county schools, spoke briefly.

O. B. May, secretary of town and county board of the Columbus Y. M. C. A. gave a few remarks and introduced the speaker of the evening, Dr. Frank W. Slutz, of Dayton, boys' counselor, educator, teacher, and also a writer for church and school journals. Dr. Slutz gave a splendid address which was well received.

The officers of the local club including Tom Kirwin president; Otis Mader, vice president; George Speakman, secretary, and James Henderson, treasurer, exemplified the Hi-Y ceremony. They were assisted by E. I. Gephart as advisor; Donald Henry as candidate; Jack Foresman as conductor.

NEW YORKER, 39, ADMITS BRUTAL MURDER OF WOMEN

AGED WOMAN, GIRL, 18, ARE FOUND KILLED

Argument Over "Making Hog of Self" Blamed For Act of Father of Three

NEW YORK, April 2—Thomas McFarland, 39-year-old varnish-maker and the father of three children, stood revealed today as the brutal slayer of his sixty-eight year old mother-in-law, Mrs. Nora Kelly, and her granddaughter, Florence McVey, 18.

McFarland made a complete confession last night, police said, and today was being held formally without bail on a charge of homicide.

The bodies of the two women were found in their Brooklyn home shortly before dawn yesterday. Autopsies revealed that both had been criminally attacked.

Hung From Rafter

Mrs. Kelly's body was hanging from a wire noose attached to rafters in the basement. Miss McVey's body was found lying on the floor of the living room. She had been smothered to death. McFarland was picked up by detectives yesterday and was subjected to a grueling questioning. At first he steadfastly denied all knowledge of the crime, but broke down when detectives told them they were going to have stains on his clothing subjected to analysis to determine whether they were caused by human blood.

"Oh, all right, I'll tell you all about it and get the thing off my chest," police quoted McFarland as saying.

"I went to visit Mrs. Kelly with a bottle of wine," McFarland then said. "I guess I drank too much. I had had a glass of beer and some sherry when I had dinner at home with the children at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon and I stopped at a saloon and had five beers on the way."

"Mrs. Kelly and I were in the kitchen and she got sore when I took several glasses from the bottle."

"She told me to stop making such a hog of myself. Then she raised a chair as though to strike me. Everything went black. I have a faint recollection of choking her."

The bodies of the women were found when Patrick Murray, who lived in the same house, upstairs, became alarmed at the constant whining of Mrs. Kelly's dog. McFarland, a native of Mobile, Ala., met Mrs. Kelly's daughter, Anna, while serving with the army at Fort Hancock in 1917. They were married that same year. His children are Marian, aged 14, and eleven-year-old twins, Anna and Edith. His wife died when the twins were born.

New Instrument Brings Lost Senses Back to Girl Who is Deaf and Blind

"Teletactor" Enables Her to Play and Enjoy Piano

CHICAGO, April 1 — The deaf may hear and the dumb may speak — as the result of years of research by Dr. Robert T. Gault, Northwestern university psychologist.

The medium through which these lost or injured faculties are restored to unfortunate victims is, strangely enough, the skin.

Scientists long have known that the skin may be divided into thousands of tiny squares, each of which has its own hot and cold touch and pain-sensitive nerve endings. But it remained for Dr. Gault to conceive the idea that skin still had other sensibilities—that sensations of even more importance could be transmitted through that delicate sensory organ.

Decade of Research After more than ten years work Dr. Gault has been able to prove his theory and to illustrate its effectiveness with experiments on many deaf and dumb persons.

Dr. Gault has perfected what he calls a "teletactor," by which not only can human speech, music and other sounds be transmitted successfully to the deaf but by which a deaf-blind girl has actually learned to play a piano—which she has never seen or heard, as ordinary persons see and hear.

Miss Helen Martin, who probably will never see or hear in her life, today enjoys the music she produces on the piano—thanks to Dr. Gault's teletactor.

It was the teletactor, with its combination of the principles of the telephone and radio, which first brought music to her brain through her vibratory system. It was through the same means that she learned to play the instrument and today, with the teletactor attached to the piano, Miss Martin "hears" the music she plays.

How Student Rejoices The benefits of the teletactor are not limited to individuals, however, as has been demonstrated recently at the Illinois School for the Deaf, where ten groups of pupils are now under instruction, by means of the Gault invention. Through apparatus attached to the teacher's desk, and connected at the desk of each pupil, instruction goes on in exactly the same manner as in a normal classroom and a student may recite by the same means so that the entire class will feel his message.

In the past the deaf have been instructed by lip-reading, a method which has denied them the pleasures of "hearing" voice tones, expressions and emphasis, and also limits their own vocal expression to unnatural tones.

The invention which has proved so successful in schools is also to be further developed, according to Dr. Gault, so that a miniature apparatus may be used in movie houses and theaters for the enjoyment of deaf patrons.

The teletactor system consists of a microphone or victrola attachment, a powerful amplifier, an electro-magnetic receiver, or vibrator of low impedance, which is for use by the deaf person. Dr. Gault in describing his invention, says: "Engineering has played into our hands. The radio has made practically every one at least superficially familiar with the possibilities in the amplification of those vibrations that are the physical basis of sound. By the application of the principles involved in amplification, we have developed the Gault-Teletactor.

Feels Sound "By its means the vibrations that are set up by the vocal organs or by any musical instrument are in a greatly amplified form, reproduced in a vibrating unit upon which the deaf subject rests his fingers. Thus he feels speech or musical sounds. Our most recently constructed instrument provides greater and greater amplification to parallel the ascending scale of pitches up to the limit that is essential in speech.

"By feeling speech through our apparatus, the deaf are enabled to make many discriminations among characteristics of spoken language that cannot be made by the lip-reader's eye alone.

"Our recent laboratory experience with a deaf-blind subject and with others who are seeing-deaf, very pointedly suggests the possibility that the feel of music, without the aid of hearing, may lead to the enjoyment of the piano and even make it practical to develop technique."

At the close of the program, the present officers as the evening's committee, served refreshments. The annual inspection of Heber chapter will be held April 11th.

RACKET DRIVE IS STUDIED IN OHIO, DISCLOSE

Addison Asks Aid of Legislature in Stamping Out Menace to State

COLUMBUS, April 2—A renewed drive against "rackets" has been inaugurated by the state division of securities, Hugh Addison, chief of the division, disclosed today.

But the division is asking aid from the legislature to stamp out "fleeing schemes" of unscrupulous promoters this time, Addison declared.

Concentrating on two activities he terms "rackets," Addison has added another legal investigator to his staff, Morton J. Niepp of Toledo, assistant to Frazier Reams, Lucas county prosecutor who aided in the penitentiary investigation.

Would Amend Laws

He has also requested legislative leaders to amend existing laws to give his department more power in controlling sale of cemetery lots, and warehouse liquor receipts.

Addison estimated the cemetery lot sale plan has cost residents of Ohio $15,000,000 in the past three years.

"Promoters buy a small country tract for their cemetery, make at least one burial there so that it may be legally termed a cemetery and then proceed to sell scores of lots," he explained.

"These promoters usually take over building and loan certificates at face value in payment for the lots and guarantee to resell them, providing the purchaser gives them exclusive sale rights.

"This protects them from cut prices on lots they have already sold, because no one can resell the lots under the contracts. They even induce churches to sell plots for about 15 per cent, giving ministers free plots as added inducements," Addison stated.

He pointed out that their claims there are not enough cemeteries are false, since surveys have shown adequate cemetery plots for all the burials estimated for 200 years or more.

Not Under Contract

The liquor warehouse receipt racket is not subject to the control of the department at present, but he has asked that the securities division be vested with power to control their sale.

"Sale of the receipts as an investment is based on the assumption that the value of liquor represented by the receipts will increase with age," Addison asserted. "In a large share of the cases this is untrue and we want to be able to prevent the sale of receipts for liquor that will not increase in value with age."

MONDAY CLUB ELECTS DELEGATES TO CONVENTION

Delegates to the annual convention of the Ohio Federation of Women's clubs to be held in Columbus, April 10, 11, 12 were named by the Monday club at its meeting, last evening, in the Library trustees' room.

Mrs. Fred P. Griner and Mrs. James P. Moffitt were elected delegates and alternates are Mrs. Robert Musser and Mrs. Harry Hefner. A large number of members from the club are also planning to attend the convention, which promises to be especially interesting this year because the Ohio Federation is sponsoring the campaign of Dr. Josephine Peirce for president of the General Federation of Women's clubs.

A very interesting and educational program followed the business in the study of the German Government. Papers were given by Miss Alice Ada May and Mrs. Hulse Hays.

Mrs. Hays told of the rise of Hitler, his organization of a Nazi party financed by the steel trusts interests and capitalists of his country, his present organization and plan for another great war.

Culbertsons' Lead Cut As New Rules are Used

NEW YORK, April 2.—The Sims-Culbertson contract bridge battle failed to be a proving ground for the new scoring system celebrating its baptismal fire.

Despite the fact that it was predicted the reductions in grand slam bonuses would make it doubly difficult for P. Hal Sims and his wife to cut down the commanding lead of Ely Culbertson and Mrs. Culbertson, the Sims team today were only 5940 points behind. They have lopped off 3440 points in the last 24 hours.

Only once did the new scoring enter into the situation. That was when the Simses, having scored sixty points on a two-heart bid, next bid one 'no-trump' and garnered game. Under the new bridge code, one no-trump is valued at forty points instead of thirty.

Learn Nothing Yet "We have learned nothing yet as to the effect of the new code on bridge playing," said Culbertson. The additional liberties given the "dummy" under the new rules also failed to produce any stimulating remarks.

Perhaps the four contestants were saving their quips for the late sessions today when a form of "nudist bridge" will be played under a microphone hanging over the center of the table.

A local radio station arranged for the broadcasting of every mite of conversation across the table. In the 299 hands played to date, the lineup of royal cards follows:

Aces Kings Queens
Culbertsons: 594 574 644
Simses: 602 622 552

PATTERN 9340

Paris is mad about those flattering frocks in which sash and dress are cut in one. There's no doubt about it, they do give your figure a lovely, youthful appearance. In pattern 9340, Marian Martin strikes an entirely new note by means of a line that extends from the neck, crosses at the bodice and concludes in the back. She uses three flares to form the sleeve effects in front—the top one extending across the back to form a collar. A row of tiny buttons down the bodice front gives fineness of detail. It's a love of a dress for afternoons—and too, too divine in a silk or cotton flower print of beautiful coloring.

Pattern 9340 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 2 3/4 yards 39 inch fabric and 7-8 yard contrasting.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for EACH MARIAN MARTIN pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE of each pattern.

PATTERN 9340

Paris is mad about those flattering frocks in which sash and dress are cut in one. There's no doubt about it, they do give your figure a lovely, youthful appearance. In pattern 9340, Marian Martin strikes an entirely new note by means of a line that extends from the neck, crosses at the bodice and concludes in the back. She uses three flares to form the sleeve effects in front—the top one extending across the back to form a collar. A row of tiny buttons down the bodice front gives fineness of detail. It's a love of a dress for afternoons—and too, too divine in a silk or cotton flower print of beautiful coloring.

THE 'COUNTRY' DAILY

(Following are excerpts from an editorial tribute paid to the small city newspapers of America by the Chicago Herald and Examiner, one of the leading metropolitan newspapers of the United States.)

ONLY young reporters of big city origin, and a few of their elders whose roamings have been limited, believe there is any such thing as a "hick" daily press. Informed men do not accept the conception of a "country" daily as one of provincial viewpoint, haphazard operation and small influence.

A daily newspaper, wherever printed, is an institution whose FIELD OF INTEREST IS AS WIDE AS THE WORLD ITSELF. The very fact that it exists is proof that a small town daily is a dynamic force, socially and economically, in its community. It takes card money to publish a daily newspaper, and the expense continues, day by day, regardless of income. There is a minimum of cost below which no newspaper can fall and live.

When a daily, large or small, ceases to interest and serve and ceases to show dollars-and-cents return to its advertisers, it dies. Therefore, when you see a copy of a so-called "country" newspaper, you may well say to yourself:

"This is a good paper, which interests the people of its community, and serves them in every way it can, and in which it PAYS to advertise. Here is something in which a certain number of people have faith."

The smaller the daily, the bigger, comparatively, the editor must be. For in spite of the fact that he probably fills two or three jobs, he must be a BIG LEAGUE THINKER AND OBSERVER, or he couldn't be a successful editor at all.

He must do the same kind of thinking as his brother of the metropolis. But his judgments regarding local happenings must be reached in the light of the fact that he is known personally to most of his subscribers.

Still he can not compromise with truth. Only so long as he sticks to sound, INDEPENDENT PRINCIPLES, and strives to winnow the truth from the chaff of falsehood and propaganda, will his neighbors have confidence in him. Alone he is required to solve problems as momentous for the well-being of the community and the paper as ever confront the directing minds of huge metropolitan journals.

One of the American miracles is that the lone intellect usually functions properly, to the advantage of the people of the region.

The small town daily's importance, however, can be measured in no more striking fashion than by the tons of "publicity" that are poured upon it, year in and year out, by politicians and other propagandists. The fine judgment which consigns most of it to the waste basket is a tribute to the small town editor's sense of duty to his readers. He's hard to fool.

PUBLIC SERVICE A CAREER

PUBLIC SERVICE needs well-trained, intelligent men and women. Young men and women need new opportunities. Yet a commission making a study of public service personnel in many cities finds that "the brightest, the most energetic, the ablest individuals don't go into public service. They don't go to the civil service commission and ask for an examination; they don't even go to some ward leader and ask for a job. They don't want to work for the government." There are reasons for this.

"The spoils system, the use of the public payroll for charity, undiscriminating criticism of public employees, and the failure to adjust our ideas, our governmental institutions and our public personnel policies to the social and economic changes since the Civil war, are primarily responsible for this condition," reports the commission.

Somewhat or other, suggests Luther Gulick, in an article in the Survey Mid-monthly, public service must be put on a career basis. Young people must be attracted to it because it offers opportunity to use their ability and training and also because it offers "advancement, with their growth, to positions of respect and honor."

This is not an entirely new suggestion. Others have been saying the same thing in different ways for some time. Here is something for educators to work on in the public schools and colleges. Unless history, economics, sociology and political science are taught with some such end in view, they are of little practical use.

Looking Back In Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

Yeggs cracked two safes in Circleville and made a getaway. A safe at S. C. Grant's coal office was completely demolished and yielded $209.88, and the Shell Oil Co. was robbed of $120, the yeegs breaking the combination of the safe.

The Pickaway Guernsey Cattle Breeders' association was organized with Chas. T. Hay, Asheville, as president. Other officers were: Mr. Green, Kingston, vice president, and A. M. Glick, Circleville, secretary-treasurer.

The home of Samuel Brooks at Five Points together with the contents, was destroyed by fire.

15 YEARS AGO
Lee Wing, of Williamsport, sold his farm horses and purchased a complete outfit of motor farming equipment.

A motor-driven gasoline pump, the first of its kind in Circleville, was installed at Herb Johnston's garage.

Dunlap day was observed by the W. C. T. U. at Five Points with an all-day meeting.

25 YEARS AGO
County commissioners of Pickaway and Madison cos held a joint meeting at the site of the proposed bridge across Deer Creek at Mt. Sterling.

The board of trustees of the Presbyterian church rejected all bids for the completion of the church belfry.

Mrs. Grace Pontius, of near Hallsville, sold 34 acres of land to Herman Drischbach for $8,000 cash a fraction over $235 an acre.

A Thought for Today

GYPSY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE
McDONALD FEADER

READ THIS FIRST:

Consuelo, a beautiful gypsy girl who longs to dance, is loved by the Dummy, a deaf mute, and Marcu. She despises her mother, Anica, but is fond of her father, Girtza. Marcu tempts Consuelo with a huge diamond and she agrees to marry him. But on her wedding day she boards a train for New York on which are riding Stewart Blackmore, theatrical producer; Doug, his secretary, and Bill, a friend. Consuelo had danced for them 10 days previously when their private car had been waiting on a railroad siding in town. Doug takes the gypsy into Stewart's car. Stewart, telegraphing his publicity agent and also his friend, Louise, telling her not to meet the train. Consuelo throws her arms around him. In New York a series of publicity stunts prepares Consuelo for her debut in the Follies. Crowds watch her everywhere she goes. Longing for green grass, the gypsy leaves her hotel alone and finally gets into Central Park, where she bathes her tired feet in a fountain pool—and is arrested. Rescued for rehearsal she not only dances without fire, but has a fight with Louise LeVelle, the star, who demands that Consuelo be removed from the cast. Doug tells the gypsy girl she can have only one more chance.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 24

STILL CONSUELO did not look up, but sat tense in the chair.

"It will be different," she said.

"Well, it'd better be," said Doug. "Gosh, kid, when you danced beside the train I'd never seen anyone so good. Why didn't you dance like that when you were on the stage?"

"I have no spirit in me when I am there. It's cold and black and ugly and nowhere can I see that it might be a marble palace—"

"I know, kid, you're getting a tough break. Forget all this and imagine the crowds out front. Gee, kid, when you dance and know that there are thousands of people out there in front watching every move you make, why, it makes all the difference in the world. I'd like to take you and let you see it alive but," he grinned, "they won't let you go back-stage till it's necessary, little hell-cat. You know New York has been reading a lot about you. We haven't ticketed it to sell. He was coaxing the light back into her eyes. "Baby, you've got a chance to go over like a million dollars."

Louise was jealous of you or she wouldn't have said the things she did. She's afraid of you already. She's afraid you'll take her place and become the star of the show. I'll tell you like her or he'd said to tell you the world you acted the other day."

For a long time he talked to her and when he had her promise that she would be good he got up to go. "Stewart hasn't forgotten you yet. He took a small case out of his pocket. "He said to tell you that if you'll be a good girl and not cause him or us any more trouble he'll get you something more beautiful than this even." He handed the case to the girl. "It's from him."

Consuelo opened the black box. Inside lay a necklace with four squares of rubies. She gasped and held it out, devouring its beauty.

"Rubies, rubies for a gypsy!" she looked at it long and lovingly and the light of happiness came back into her eyes. "Tell him that the rubies are no redder than my lips which are waiting for him." She put the necklace on and bent her head and pressed the square against her cheek. "Tell him I will be good, tell him I will not spit on this white woman, tell him I will dance for him and forget that ugly stage. Tell Mr. Goldberg, who is fat and looks like a frog, that I will make money for him. Tell him I will give him all of the silver dollars that roll to my feet." She paused. "Tell my white man that I am lonesome—"

Long into the hours of the night the girl sat and stared into the darkness. Does, all of them, she thought. This white woman, ah, how I hate her! I looked at her and thought she was beautiful but my eyes lied to me. My white man sends me a necklace that is more costly than any I have ever owned and yet he does not care to me. A piece of glass was worth more than that to Marcu.

She thought of the gypsy camp. She went into the bedroom, took the shawl from the drawer and wrapped it around her shoulders. She saw the Dummy, his dark eyes upon her, loving her, his lips so speechless. She saw him and Marcu fighting and the dust that stirred about their feet. She saw Girtza and her heart became more lonely than it had ever been.

Walls about her, holding her in crushing her. Big Ann, a glances. No trees, no laughing, brooks, no man to hold her in his arms. No man to whisper words of love—or to cling to her. Marcu, tall and straight, offering her to the ground and laughing. Marcu who had said, gypsy women lie, and had put the ring on his finger before he had taken her in his arms. Did he not know the ring was unnecessary? If only then he had said to Girtza, I offer you three horses and my purse of gold. A ruby necklace? Was it, too, maybe a "hunk of glass?"

There is a high hill and I shall dance there—irony of words, irony of dreams! There is no high hill. There is no palace, but on that ugly stage stands a woman with golden hair.

In the darkness of the night the gypsy flung back her head and clenched her fists and pounded against the arms of the chair.

I will show this white dog who says I cannot dance. Ah—I will show her! I will make her take back her lying words! I will make her cry out that she is a liar! I will make this Goldberg, this fat toad, get on his knees and beg me to stay before I am through with this New York. They will not conquer me! I will make this white man, this Stewart, love me. He who thinks he is too good for a gypsy, who sends gifts and is too proud not to accept reward, I will make him love me until he is mad with passion and then I will laugh in his face. Oh, God, how I will laugh!

Her hands beat harder against the chair. There were tears streaming down her face.

I am going mad in this jail—but I have work to do. Then, all of them, have spit upon me and I, Gypsy Consuelo, swear vengeance! . . . If there are thousands there as he said, I will be rich—rich—scheme. Then some of the neighbors got to looking things over and decided a little work around their own premises wouldn't hurt anything, and the first thing we knew we had a creditable looking street.

Fix up the old place the best you can and you'll have a lot of pride in it. Doesn't take much money, but there's some necessary recreation elbow-grease involved that's good for the body and soul. And when someone stops to admire the place and tells you what a pretty home you have, you'll throw out your chest and tell 'em it required a lot of hard work, when in reality the Mrs. did about 90 per cent of it.

And while I'm on the subject of flowers I'll pass on a verse written by Thomas Edward Brown.

"A garden is a lovesome thing,
God wot!
Rose plot, fringed pool, Ferned grove—

The veriest school
Of peace; and yet the fool
Of content; that God the poet
Not God! in garden! when the eve is cool?

Nay, but I have a sign:
'Tis very sure God walks in mine!"

Big Ann was shaking her.

She leaned back in the chair. Money flowing in a golden stream and it was music to her. And she began to picture how she would dance to make them throw their dollars with reckless abandon.

I will not think of that bare place, but of brooks and of trees and through the trees I will remember that the white woman is watching me.

Her eyes closed. Her body relaxed.

Music began to throb through her and she saw herself dancing. As she danced the stage became the high hill and the palace of marble and she wondered at the import of the thing she saw. Was it possible?

The dance ended. To her ears came the sound of clapping like thunder and the people were not on the high hill, but before her sitting row after row in the big theater. Ah, it was good to dream thus! If only the Dummy might come to her now and watch her and tell her with his eyes that she was the most wonderful dancer in the world—the one who knew her dream!

Her thoughts became muddled. They were no longer coherent. All of this that had happened was a bad nightmare. She had never left the gypsy camp. She had never sought revenge on Marcu. She was going to marry him now. But the bridegroom who stood before her was not Marcu. It was the white man. Over her shoulders came a long, rawhide whip with its beautiful carved handle and came out and began to beat the white woman. Now she was laughing and at each fall of the whip she cried, "This is for that lying word and that one that one—" Then there was confusion and someone else had the whip and it was Anica, beating her again in the van, and she was crying out from the pain.

She opened her eyes and big Ann was shaking her and the sun was streaming in the windows. "You can't sleep in your chair like this, miss, you'll catch cold." She picked the gypsy up in her arms and carried her into the bathroom. She stripped the girl of her clothes and lifted her into a steaming hot tub and began to massage the cold skin.

Consuelo, out of eyes still half closed with sleep, grinned up at her. "I am beginning to like you, my Ann. It is good to have one to boss me and not ask first if I will be good!"

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

The Paramount company filming "Rumba," which stars George Raft and Carole Lombard and comes Wednesday and Thursday to the Cliftona theatre, couldn't go to Havana, so Paramount brought Havana to Hollywood.

Reproductions of six of the Cuban capital's most notable "night spots" were constructed on the Paramount lot by a crew of five hundred carpenters and artisans. They include such famous places as the San Souci, Chateau Madrie, the Casino and the National Lottery Place.

AT THE GRAND

One of the brightest stars ever to shine in the minstrel world is leading a revival movement of minstrelsy on the stage and will be here in the person of Dan Fitch with his "Minstrels and Girl Revue," playing the Grand Theatre tonight only. In the days when Al G. Fields and his stars of the blackface world were in their height of popularity, Dan Fitch was one of the outstanding performers. Since then, Mr. Fitch has produced band units for several years. Theatre managers have prevailed upon him to bring back some of the comedy and charm of the old time minstrels. To fulfill this demand, Mr. Fitch has produced his modern show so as to revive some of the important features of the oldtime fun-making performances. He brings with the show, in addition, a modern revue.

In presenting this type of entertainment, managers believe that Mr. Fitch is anticipating the public demand and that public response will be enthusiastic. Dan Fitch, himself will be the star, together with Frank "Cracker" Quinn, another famed comedian in black, who headlined many Keith bills and formerly starred in Neil O'Brien's Minstrels.

AT THE GRAND

Preceded by the most glowing of advance reports, Fox Film's comedy with music, "Foxy Lover," will open an engagement today at the Grand Theatre.

Preview audiences in Hollywood. It is said, have called this film one of the most delightful of a decade.

Poems That Live

THE HARP THAT ONCE THROUGH TARA'S HALLS
The harp that once through Tara's halls,
The soul of beauty shed,
Now hangs as mute on Tara's walls.

As if that soul were fled,
So sleeps the pride of former days,
So glory's thrill is o'er,
And hearts that once beat high for praise.

Now feel that pulse no more.

No more to chiefs and ladies bright
The harp of Tara swells;
The chord alone, that breaks at night

Its tale of ruin tells.
Thus Freedom now so seldom wakes,
The only throb she gives,
Is when some heart indignant breaks,

To show that still she lives.

Editorial Of The Day

THE WAR IS ON (Ohio State Journal)

The ban is on the walkathon if it goes beyond 12 hours; that's long enough, for the contest's tough. say the statute-making powers. The Senate, too, has voted taboo on the lengthy talking fest: the skaters gay after half a day must take a needed rest.

The dancathon is looked upon as much too long a thing; if the law goes through the dancers too must take time out, by jing. The senators say (without a yea) that the dancers will fall in a heap, if they do not stop for a downy flop and 24 hours of sleep.

Why not let them be? Shouldn't they be free to make of themselves damned fools? Let them dance or talk let them skate or walk; why should they be held by rules?

Only this we crave, if they will behave like a lot of silly frocks and dance or walk, or skate or talk for many days and weeks, just let them go where the big woods grow and the glade is dark and deep. If they must contest, why, let us rest; away from our neighborhood keep.

Changed Diet of People Aids Intestinal Health

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE HEAD OF THE department of medicine in a large university medical school said to me the other day, "Do you ever hear of constipation any more?" It seems to me almost a thing of the past. I have not myself personally taken a cathartic for ten years. And I do not believe there has been more than one dose a year given to any member of my family—and those all to the children."

Well, if my correspondence is any criterion, he will seem to have reached a paradise of bliss. There is still plenty of constipation in the world. But there is a great deal in what he says. Constipation is no longer regarded as a serious disease entity.

There are, I believe, two reasons for this. One, and perhaps the most important, is the changing diet of people—at least, the American people. Within the memory of many of us who are not yet entirely in our dotage, the standard American meal was meat and potatoes. Somewhere in the late nineties the "extra vegetable" began to appear as a regular or frequent addition to the average (I emphasize that) American meal. Before that the prime, which bore the brunt of dietetic humor in the old days as spinach does now, was about the only form of roughage that was evident. Except perhaps the ubiquitous apple. And let me be one sinner at the apple as a constipation preventative.

But gradually the preponderance of meat went down, and the percentage of vegetables and fruits went up. Potatoes are now, in most households at least, a minor feature of the meal. Think of all the vegetables and fruit with which we escape monotony—most of them of quite temporary introduction. Broccoli, asparagus, tomatoes, carrots, celery, endive, grapefruit—in many quarters they were considered poisonous when I was young. Cabbage, sauerkraut, slaw, cauliflower and dandelion have risen in the world—they belonged once only on humble tables. Now they are the delicacies of the season.

Salad has become a regular part of a meal. Indeed, for some business men and business women it is the meal in itself. And with its watercress and lettuce, celery, fruit slices and tomatoes, it makes up a good load of bulk to act as a cleanser. And if one uses mineral oil instead of olive oil (I defy anyone to tell the difference by taste if a little olive oil is put in and the whole skillfully mixed) in the dressing, it leaves out the fattening part and puts in the best laxative for chronic use.

The amount of fruits we use now in comparison to other days is simply overwhelming.

All of these articles are healthy and furnish the roughage or bulk that constitutes a gentle but effective stimulus to the intestinal movements.

Furthermore, they are non-producible and distributed so inexpensively that they are available to all.

The second reason that constipation is heard of less is that fewer people take it seriously. It is no longer regarded as a health menace. But that is another story.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clendingen can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendingen, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation," "Feeding and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

There are reasons for this.

"The spoils system, the use of the public payroll for charity, undiscriminating criticism of public employees, and the failure to adjust our ideas, our governmental institutions and our public personnel policies to the social and economic changes since the Civil war, are primarily responsible for this condition," reports the commission.

Somehow or other, suggests Luther Gulick, in an article in the Survey Mid-monthly, public service must be put on a career basis. Young people must be attracted to it because it offers opportunity to use their ability and training and also because it offers "advancement, with their growth, to positions of respect and honor."

This is not an entirely new suggestion. Others have been saying the same thing in different ways for some time. Here is something for educators to work on in the public schools and colleges. Unless history, economics, sociology and political science are taught with some such end in view, they are of little practical use.

Looking Back In Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

Yeggs cracked two safes in Circleville and made a getaway. A safe at S. C. Grant's coal office was completely demolished and yielded $20.98, and the Shell Oil Co. was robbed of $130, the yeggs breaking the combination of the safe.

The Pickaway Guernsey Cattle Breeders' association was organized with Chas. T. Hay, Ashville, as president. Other officers were Mr. Green, Kingston, vice president, and A. M. Glick, Circleville, secretary-treasurer.

The home of Samuel Brooks at Five Points, together with the contents, was destroyed by fire.

15 YEARS AGO

Lee Wing, of Williamsport, sold his farm horses and purchased a complete outfit of motor farming equipment.

A motor-driven gasoline pump, the first of its kind in Circleville, was installed at Herb Johnston's garage.

Dunlap day was observed by the W. C. T. U. at Five Points with an all-day meeting.

25 YEARS AGO

County commissioners of Pickaway and Madison cos held a joint meeting at the site of the proposed bridge across Deer Creek at Mt. Sterling.

The board of trustees of the Presbyterian church rejected all bids for the completion of the church belfry.

Mrs. Grace Pontius, of near Hallsville, sold 34 acres of land to Herman Dresbach for $8,000 cash, a fraction over $235 an acre.

A Thought for Today

"While he yet spake, behold, a bright cloud overshadowed them: and behold a voice out of the cloud, which said, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased; hear ye him."

GYPSY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE
McDONALD FEADER

READ THIS FIRST:

Consuelo, a beautiful gypsy girl who longs to dance, is loved by the Dummy, a deaf mute, and Marcu. She despises her mother, Anica, but is fond of her father, Girtza. Marcu tempts Consuelo with a huge diamond and she agrees to marry him. But on her wedding day she boards a train for New York on which are riding Stewart Blackmore, theatrical producer; Doug, his secretary, and Bill, a friend. Consuelo had danced for them 10 days previously when their private car had been waiting on a railroad siding in town. Doug takes the gypsy into Stewart's car. Stewart telegraphs his publicity agent and also his friend, Louise, telling her not to meet the train. Consuelo throws her arms around him. In New York a series of publicity stunts prepares Consuelo for her debut in the Folies. Girtza watches her everywhere she goes. Longing for green grass, the gypsy leaves her hotel alone and finally gets into Central Park, where she bathes her tired feet in a fountain pool—and is arrested. Rescued for rehearsal she not only dances without fire, but has a fight with Louise. The star, who demands that Consuelo be removed from the cast. Doug tells the gypsy girl she can have only one more chance.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 24

STILL CONSUELO did not look up, but sat tense in the chair.

"It will be different," she said.

"Well, it'd better be," said Doug. "Gosh, kid, when you danced beside the train I'd never seen anyone so good. Why didn't you dance like that when you were on the stage?"

"I have no spirit in me when I am there. It's cold and black and ugly and nowhere can I see that it might be a marble palace."

"I know, kid, you're getting a tough break. Forget all this and imagine the crowds out front. Gee, kid, when you dance and know that there are thousands of people out there in front watching every move you make, why, it makes all the difference in the world. I'd like to take you and let you see it alive but," he grinned, "they won't let you go back-stage till it's necessary, little hell-cat. You know New York has been reading a lot about you. We haven't a ticket left to sell. It was one of the light back into her eyes. "Baby, you've got a chance to go over like a million dollars. Why Louise was jealous of you or she wouldn't have said the things she did. She's afraid of you already. She's afraid you'll take her place and become the star of the show. I'll let you in on a secret, Goldberg doesn't like her or he'd never in the world let you have a chance after the way you acted the other day."

For a long time he talked to her and when he had her promise that she would be good he got up to go. "Sweetheart, hasn't I got to go either? He took a small case out of his pocket. "He said to tell you that if you'll be a good girl and not cause him or us any more trouble he'll get you something more beautiful than this even." He handed the case to the girl. "It's from him."

Consuelo opened the black box. Inside lay a necklace with four square-cut rubies. She gasped and held it out, devouring its beauty. "Rubies, rubies for a gypsy!" She looked at it long and lovingly and the light of happiness came back into her eyes. "Tell him that the rubies are no redder than his lips which are waiting for him. She put the necklace on and bent her head and pressed the stones against her cheek. "Tell him I will be good. Tell him I will not spit on this white woman. Tell him I will dance for him and forget that ugly stage. Tell Mr. Goldberg, who is fat and looks like a frog, that I will make money for him. Tell him I will give him all of the silver dollars that roll to my feet." She paused. "Tell my white man that I am lonesome."

Long into the hours of the night the girl sat and stared into the darkness. Dogs, all of them, she thought. This white woman, ah, how I hate her! I looked at her and thought she was beautiful but my eyes lied to me. My white man sends me a necklace that is more costly than any I have ever owned and yet he does not come to me. A piece of glass was worth more than that to Marcu.

She thought of the gypsy camp. She went into the bedroom, took the shawl from the drawer and wrapped it around her shoulders. She saw the Dummy, his dark eyes upon her, loving her, his lips so speechless. She saw him and Marcu fighting and the dust that stirred about their feet. She saw Girtza and her heart became more lonely than it had ever been.

Walls about her, holding her in, crushing her. Big Ann, a giantess. No trees, no laughing brooks, no man to hold her in his arms. No man to whisper words of love—or to beat her. Marcu, tall and straight, flinging her to the ground and laughing. Marcu who had said, gypsy women lie, and had put the ring on his finger before he had taken her in his arms. Did he not know the ring was unnecessary? If only then he had said to Girtza, I offer you three horses and my purse of gold. A ruby necklace? Was it, too, maybe a "chunk of glass?"

There is a high hill and I shall dance there—irony of words, irony of dreams! There is no high hill. There is no palace, but one that ugly stage stands a woman with golden hair.

In the darkness of the night the gypsy flung back her head and clenched her fists and pounded against the arms of the chair. I will show this white dog who says I cannot dance. Ah—if I show her! I will make her take back her lying words! "I will make her cry out that she is a liar! I will make this Goldberg, this fat fool, before I am through with this New York. They will not conquer me! I will make this white man, this Stewart, love me. He who thinks he is too good for a gypsy who sends gifts and is fool enough not to accept reward. I will make him love me until he is mad with passion and then I will laugh in his face. Oh, God, how I will laugh!

Her hands beat harder against the chair. There were tears streaming down her face. I am going mad in this jail—all I have work to do. They, all of them, have spit upon me and I, Gypsy Consuelo, swear vengeance! . . . If there are thousands there as he said, I will be rich—rich—

She leaned back in the chair. Money flowing in a golden stream and it was music to her. And she began to picture how she would dance to make them throw their dollars with needless abandon.

I will not think of that bare place, but of brooks and of trees and through the trees I will remember that the white woman is watching me.

Her eyes closed. Her body relaxed.

Music began to throb through her and she saw herself dancing. And she danced the stage became the high hill and the palace of marble and she wondered at the import of the thing she saw. Was it possible? The dance ended. To her ears came the sound of clapping like thunder and the people were not on the high hill, but before her sitting row after row in the big theater. Ah, it was good to dream thus! If only the Dummy might come to her now and watch her and tell her with his eyes that she was the most wonderful dancer in the world—he who knew her'reading."

Her thoughts became muddled. They were no longer coherent. All of this that had happened was a bad nightmare. She had never left the gypsy camp. She had never sought revenge on Marcu. She was going to marry him now. But the bridegroom who stood before her was not Marcu. It was the white man. Over there sitting cross-legged in the dirt by the fireplace was the golden-haired woman. Consuelo went into the van and got the long rawhide whip with its beautiful carved handle and came out and began to beat the white woman. Now she was laughing and at the end of the whip she cried, "This is for that lying word and that one and that one—" Then there was confusion and someone else had the whip and it was Anica beating her again in the van, and she was crying out from the pain.

She opened her eyes and big Ann was shaking her and the sun was streaming in the windows. "You can't sleep in your chair like this, miss, you'll catch cold."

She picked the gypsy up in her arms and carried her into the bathroom. She stripped the girl of her clothes and lifted her into a steaming hot tub and began to massage the ocher skin.

Consuelo, out of eyes still half closed with sleep, grinned up at her. "I am beginning to like you, my Ann. It is good to have one to boss me and not ask first if I will be good."

Heard & Seen

BY KAY JAY

It seems to me that Circleville is fortunate in having far beyond the average number of people interested in flower gardens that are usually found in cities of this size.

Walking and driving about the city at intervals between showers Sunday, I noticed quite a bit of activity already in progress, such as cleaning up lawns and gardens, trimming shrubbery, etc. Moisture and sunshine have brought out many beautiful blossoms, and there was a fragrance in the air that was appealing.

Many people whose efforts to produce fresh vegetables in the garden were unsuccessful from either a recreational or financial standpoint, have made the former vegetables plots into places of beauty—with lawn grass, shrubbery trees, and a varied assortment of flowers.

The one strenuous season I struggled with a vegetable garden was in no manner a success. I invested something like $6.50 in plowing and harrowing, seeds, plants and tools, and when I began to check up I found I could have purchased from our vegetable vendor a quantity far in excess of what I produced, for around $2.00. And then there were blistered hands, aching muscles, parasites and weeds to contend with, all of which brought about the decision that as a vegetable gardener I was a flop.

The change to a flower garden made the old homestead look different. And one spring day the landlord came around and decided that the garden looked better than the house—so he painted the house to conform to the general color scheme. Then some of the neighbors got to looking things over and decided a little work around their own premises wouldn't hurt anything, and the first thing we knew we had a creditable looking street.

Fix up the old place the best you can and you'll have a lot of pride in it. Doesn't take much money, but there's some necessary recreational elbow-grease involved that's good for the body and soul. And when someone stops to admire the place and tells you what a pretty home you have, you'll throw out your chest and tell 'em it required a lot of hard work, when in reality the Mrs. did about 90 per cent of it.

And while I'm on the subject of flowers I'll pass on a verse written by Thomas Edward Brown:

"A garden is a lovable thing. God wot!

Rose plot, Fringed pool, Ferned grot—

The veriest school Of peace; and yet the fool

Contents that God is not. Not God! in gardens! when the eve is cool?

Nay, but I have a sign: 'Tis very sure God walks in mine."

AT THE CLIFTONA

The Paramount company filming "Rumba," which stars George Raft and Carole Lombard and comes Wednesday and Thursday to the Cliftona theatre, couldn't go to Havana, so Paramount brought Havana to Hollywood.

AT THE GRAND

One of the brightest stars ever to shine in the minstrel world is leading a revival movement of minstrelsy on the stage and will be here in the person of Dan Fitch with his "Minstrels and Girl Revue," playing the Grand Theatre tonight only. In the days when Al G. Fields and his stars of the blackface world were in their height of popularity, Dan Fitch was one of the outstanding performers. Since then, Mr. Fitch has produced band units for several years. Theatre managers have prevailed upon him to bring back some of the comedy and charm of the old time minstrels. To fulfill this demand, Mr. Fitch has produced his modern show so as to revive some of the important features of the oldtime fun-making performances. He brings with the show, in addition, a modern revue.

In presenting this type of entertainment, managers believe that Mr. Fitch is anticipating the public demand and that public response will be enthusiastic. Dan Fitch, himself will be the star, together with Frank "Cracker" Quinn, another famed comedian in black, who headlined many Keith bills and formerly starred in Neil O'Brien's Minstrels.

AT THE GRAND

Preceded by the most glowing of advance reports, Fox Film's comedy with music, "Lottery Lover," will open an engagement today at the Grand Theatre.

Preview audiences in Hollywood. it is said, have called this film one of the most delightful of a decade.

Poems That Live

THE HARP THAT ONCE THROUGH TARA'S HALLS

The harp that once through Tara's halls,

The soul of beauty shed,

Now hangs as mute on Tara's walls,

As if that soul were fled.

So sleeps the pride of former days,

So glory's thrill is o'er,

And hearts that once beat high for praise,

Now feel that pulse no more.

No more to chiefs and ladies bright

The harp of Tara swells;

The chord alone, that breaks at night

Its tale of ruin tells.

Thus Freedom now so seldom wakes,

The only throb she gives,

Is when some heart indignant breaks,

To show that still she lives.

Editorial Of The Day

THE WAR IS ON
(Ohio State Journal)

The ban is on the walkathon if it goes beyond 12 hours; that's long enough, for the contest's tough, say the statute-making powers. The Senate, too, has voted taboo on the lengthy talking fest; the skaters say after half a day must take a needed rest.

The dancathon is looked upon as much too long a thing; if the law goes through the dancers too, must take time out, by jing. The senators say (without a nay) that the dancers will fall in a heap, if they do not stop for a downy flop and 24 hours of sleep.

Why not let them be? Shouldn't they be free to make of themselves darned fools? Let them dance or talk, let them skate or walk; why should they be held by rules?

Only this we crave, if they will behave like a lot of silly freaks and dance or walk, or skate or talk for many days and weeks, just let them go where the big woods grow and the glade is dark and deep. If they must contest, why, let us rest; away from our neighborhood keep.

Changed Diet of People Aids Intestinal Health

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE HEAD OF THE department of medicine in a large university medical school said to me the other day, "Do you ever hear of constipation any more?"

It seems to me almost a thing of the past. I have not myself, personally, taken a cathartic for 10 years. And I do not believe there has been more than one dose a year given to any member of my family—and those all to the children."

Well, if my correspondence is any criterion, he will seem to have reached a paradise of bliss. There is still plenty of constipation in the world. But there is a great deal in what he says. Constipation is no longer regarded as a serious disease entity.

There are, I believe, two reasons for this. One, and perhaps the most important, is the changing diet of people—at least, the American people. Within the memory of many of us who are not yet entirely in our dotage, the standard American meal was meat and potatoes. Some where in the late nineties the "extra vegetable" began to appear as a regular or frequent addition to the average (I emphasize that) American meal.

Before that the prune, which bore the brunt of dietetic humor in the old days as spinach does now, was about the only form of roughage that was evident. Except perhaps the midnight apple. And let no one sneer at the apple as a constipation preventative.

But gradually the preponderance of meat went down, and the percentage of vegetables and fruits went up. Potatoes are now, in most households at least, a minor feature of a meal. Think of all the vegetables and fruit with which we escape monotony—most of them of quite contemporary introduction. Broccoli, asparagus, tomatoes, celery, endive, grapefruit—in many quarters they were considered poisonous when I was young. Cabbage, sauerkraut, slaw, cauliflower and dandelion have risen in the world—they belonged once only on humble tables. Now they are the delicacies of the season.

Salad has become a regular part of a meal. Indeed, for some business men and business women it is the meal in itself. And with its watercress and lettuce, celery, fruit slices and tomatoes, it makes up a good load of bulk to act as a cleanser. And if one uses mineral oil instead of olive oil (I defy anyone to tell the difference by taste if a little olive oil is put in and the whole skillfully mixed) in the dressing, it leaves out the fattening part and puts in the best laxative for chronic use.

The amount of fruits we use now in comparison to other days is simply overwhelming.

All of these articles are healthy and furnish the roughage or bulk that constitutes a gentle but effective stimulus to the intestinal movements.

Furthermore, they are now produced and distributed so inexpensively that they are available to all.

The second reason that constipation is heard of less is that fewer people take it seriously. It is no longer regarded as a health menace. But that is another story.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clending can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clending, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

STARS TO FILL CAC GYM FOR BENEFIT TILT

Wonders Chief Attraction;
Athletic Club Team Promises to be Strong

Friday will be "all stars" night at the Athletic club gymnasium when Waterloo Wonders and Circleville Athletic club tangle in their benefit contest.

First of all the Waterloo players will be the big attraction with two state champions and a great record hanging from their belt. Coach Earl Young, of Chillicothe, who knows his basketball like nobody's business, says there never was a basketball team like it and never will be another.

Saunders is Star
Then comes the CAC team which has been augmented somewhat for the contest. Shadel Saunders, New Holland coach and former Ohio university star, will hold down one guard position in the club lineup. Saunders, unable to attend the practice session this evening because of an athletic banquet at New Holland, is a star of stars. He is rated generally as one of the best defensive men Ohio university and Columbus Central have ever turned out.

Jimmy Scoles, Ashville luminary, is another attraction. He has been a stellar performer for two years at Ashville and many fans who have heard a lot about him have not had the opportunity to see him in action.

Eve Merriman, Carl Purcell and Joe Barnes had hung up their spangles for the year when the game was announced but when apprised of the fact that the game would be against Waterloo and for the benefit of Art Steele and George Virebome they immediately announced themselves ready to play. They will round out the starting five with Saunders and Scoles.

Three Others Ready
Others who will be used by Manager Judy Gordon are Bill Hegele, Boyce Parks and possibly Byron Eby, of Chillicothe, who has asked permission to join the club as a reserve.

The preliminary will see another bright star in action. Commercial High will play the Pickaway All-Stars and Ellsworth "Red" Trego, Capital university star, expects to be in uniform for the game.

Tickets are on sale at a number of places in the county and it is urged as many persons as possible purchase them prior to Friday noon.

After that time tickets will be sold at the game but not until 7:30 o'clock, 30 minutes before game time. All persons having previously bought tickets will be able to take their seats anytime after 6 o'clock but those who wait until Friday night to buy will take a chance on getting seats.

GIANTS WIN 4-2

HATTIESBURG, Miss., April 2.—Bill Terry led his New York Giants into this little town today for a continuation of the exhibition series with the Cleveland Indians. The club awoke from its spring-season lethargy long enough yesterday to set the Redskins down 4 to 2. Fat Freddy Fitzsimmons looked like today's choice for duty in the box. The count stands three to two in favor of the Indians in the series, which has ten more contests to go.

WONDERS, IRONTON IN ROUGHING FEUD

IRONTON, April 2.—The now-famous Waterloo Wonders, the Class B high school basketball champions of Ohio for two years in a row, became central figures in a threatened feud between two Lawrence county factions today after they were "conspicuous by their absence" at a rally staged partly in their honor here last night.

The local Chamber of Commerce has arranged a banquet for the Waterloo team and members of the squads of Ironton and St. Joseph's high schools. More than 100 tickets were sold and during the ballyhoo for the affair it was announced that the Waterloo Wonders would be present.

However, members of the board of the schools at Waterloo met and passed a resolution instructing the Little Generals and their coach, Magellan Hairston, not to attend the banquet. Members of the board were silent with the exception of Dr. J. D. Swango, Water-loo's lone physician, who charged the Ironton High team had "roughed" the Waterloo five during a game here.

Coach Hairston, also principal and superintendent of schools at Waterloo, said that he and members of the squad held no brief with Ironton High but that they could not disregard the resolution of the board. The Chamber of Commerce held the banquet but without Waterloo.

Meantime, residents of Lawrence county were speculating over possible ramifications of the action on athletic relations between county schools in the future and awaited to determine whether there would be any attempt at retaliation.

REDS TO INVEST $55,000 IN MIZE

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., April 2.—Officials of the Cincinnati Reds today were reported ready to lay $55,000 on the line for the services of Jimmy Mize as their regular first baseman. Only a word from Manager Charley Dressen is awaited before the Reds acquire actual ownership. No overtures, it was said, will be made to Sunny Jim Bottomley, who walked out after demanding a higher salary. The Reds, after defeating Brooklyn 9 to 7 yesterday, were to move over to Lakeland tomorrow for a game with the Detroit Tigers.

Girl Scout News

Girl Scout Troop No. 4 met on Friday, March 28 in the basement of the Presbyterian church. Marjorie Preece read a letter from a girl in Dublin, Ireland to us. Included in the letter were some newspaper clippings and a bit of shamrock, the emblem of her country.

W. M. Reid, a member of our troop committee came in and in a delightful informal talk told us about the house wren and encouraged us to make wren houses from old tin cans. We hope Mr. Reid will be with us often. After patrol meeting and a game we closed our meeting.

CHANCES FOR BASEBALL 9 HERE VAGUE

Stoker Wants to Transfer Ash-
ville Club to This City; New
Holland In Field

Possibility of Circleville entering a baseball team in the Central Ohio loop appeared vague today although there is still a slight chance.

George Stoker, of Columbus, who owns the Ashville franchise in the loop, wants to transfer the team to this city with Frank A. Lynch, Coca Cola distributor, as the backer here. The biggest drawback to Stoker's plan, it is said, is the fact that there is no enclosed field in the city where admission could be charged for the contests.

Were there a suitable field here it is believed Lynch would take Stoker on his offer.

Rent Is Boosted
However, Stoker is making plans to play his team in Ashville at Community park. The rent has been boosted on the former Pickaway countian, thus his desire to transfer the franchise.

He will have a good ball club with Art Meier, Columbus right hander, pitching. Ed Trego, Beatty Walker, Red Trego, Whacker Davis, Chuck Koterba, Schick and others may be enrolled on Stoker's team. It is believed the team will be one of the best on the loop.

The league this year will include Ashville, Gahanna, New Albany, Grove City — Ashville's first opponent — Brice, Obetz, Columbus police and Lafayette, the latter a Madison-co entrant and a new member of the league.

Ben Ratner is president of the organization.

New Holland Busy
New Holland is going into baseball wholeheartedly this year with Shadel Saunders, athletic director at the high school, to be a "one-man nucleus." He is a hurler par excellent.

Others expected to try out for the squad are Byron Eby, Chillicothe; Wally Noon, Funk, Williams, Knapp and Carl Noon, who will pilot the team, all of Washington C. H.; Terry Lyons, Gene Briggs and a number of other New Holland boys.

Ashville and New Holland will open the season April 14.

Hope, faith, joy, sorrow are wrapped up in the Want Ads. Here's life—as it is lived. No wonder many people follow the Want Ads with intense interest from day to day!

You can never know what Want Ads will do for you until you read them and use them! A little investment in time devoted to reading them may save you many dollars on the car you have been wanting, or help you find the home of your dreams at a price within reach. Or, a few lines properly written and given enough insertions may sell that piece of real estate you considered "frozen," or rent an empty apartment, or turn surplus furniture into needed cash. Every day the Want Ads in this paper are renting houses, garages, rooms, apartments. They are finding jobs and workers. They are securing business for painters, paperhangers, music teachers, training schools. They are selling radios, furniture, refrigerators, pets, wearing apparel.

Frequently, all of us are prone to overlook the little things. But just remember this—these small ads, run at trifling cost, make a little money go a long, long way.

Those who KNOW do not overlook the Want Ads because of their size. They profit from reading them, and from using them. Now, during "National Want Ad Week" is a good time for YOU to get the habit.

It's very easy to have a Want Ad published in this paper.

STARS TO FILL CAC GYM FOR BENEFIT TILT

Wonders Chief Attraction;
Athletic Club Team Promises to be Strong

Friday will be "all stars" night at the Athletic club gymnasium when Waterloo Wonders and Circleville Athletic club tangle in their benefit contest.

First of all the Waterloo players will be the big attraction with two state champions and a great record hanging from their belt. Coach Earl Young, of Chillicothe, who knows his basketball like nobody's business, says there never was a basketball team like it and never will be another.

Saunders is Star

Then comes the CAC team which has been augmented somewhat for the contest. Shadel Saunders, New Holland coach and former Ohio university star, will hold down one guard position in the club lineup. Saunders, unable to attend the judice session this evening because of an athletic banquet at New Holland, is a star of stars. He is rated generally as one of the best defensive men Ohio university and Columbus Central have ever turned out.

Jimmy Scoles, Ashville luminary, is another attraction. He has been a stellar performer for two years at Ashville and many fans who have heard a lot about him have not had the opportunity to see him in action.

Eve Merriman, Carl Purcell and Joe Barnes had hung up their spangles for the year when the game was announced but when apprised of the fact that the game would be against Waterloo and for the benefit of Art Steele and George Vierebome they immediately announced themselves ready to play. They will round out the starting five with Saunders and Scoles.

Three Others Ready

Others who will be used by Manager Judy Gordon are Bill Hegele, Boyce Parks and possibly Byron Eby, of Chillicothe, who has asked permission to join the club as a reserve for the game.

The preliminary will see another bright star in action, Commercial Nat will play the Pickaway All-Stars and Ellsworth "Red" Trego, Capital university star, expects to be in uniform for the game.

Tickets are on sale at a number of places in the county and it is urged as many persons as possible purchase them prior to Friday noon.

After that time tickets will be sold at the game but not until 7:30 o'clock, 30 minutes before game time. All persons having previously bought tickets will be able to take their seats anytime after 6 o'clock but those who wait until Friday night to buy will take a chance on getting seats.

GIANTS WIN 4-2

HATTESBURG, Miss., April 2.—Bill Terry led his New York Giants into this little town today for a continuation of the exhibition series with the Cleveland Indians. The club awoke from its spring-season lethargy long enough yesterday to set the Redskins down 4 to 2. Fat Freddy Fitzsimmons looked like today's choice for duty in the box. The count stands three to two in favor of the Indians in the series, which has ten more contests to go.

Helen Plays Again

Helen Wills Moody

Returning to the courts after a year and a half of illness, Helen Wills Moody, former world tennis champion, starts a comeback, but denies she will appear in eastern competition this year.

JONES RETURNS TO HIS EMPIRE

Emperor Bob Jones is pictured returning to the kingdom he abandoned several years ago. The Atlanta star warms up at Pinehurst, N. C., for competition in the Augusta tournament in April.

WONDERS, IRONTON IN ROUGHING FEUD

IRONTON, April 2.—The now-famous Waterloo Wonders, the Class B high school basketball champions of Ohio for two years in a row, became central figures in a threatened feud between two Lawrence county factions today after they were "conspicuous by their absence" at a rally staged partly in their honor here last night.

The local Chamber of Commerce has arranged a banquet for the Waterloo team and members of the squads of Ironton and St. Josephs' high schools. More than 100 tickets were sold and during the ballyhoo for the affair it was announced that the Waterloo Wonders would be present.

However, members of the board of the schools at Waterloo met and passed a resolution instructing the Little Generals and their coach, Magellen Hairston, not to attend the banquet. Members of the board were silent with the exception of Dr. J. D. Swango, Water-loo's lone physician, who charged the Ironton High team had "roughed" the Waterloo five during a game here.

Coach Hairston, also principal and superintendent of schools at Waterloo, said that he and members of the squad held no brief with Ironton High but that they could not disregard the resolution of the board. The Chamber of Commerce held the banquet but without Waterloo.

Meantime, residents of Lawrence county were speculating over possible ramifications of the action on athletic relations between county schools in the future and awaited to determine whether there would be any attempt at retaliation.

REDS TO INVEST $55,000 IN MIZE

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., April 2.—Officials of the Cincinnati Reds today were reported ready to lay $55,000 on the line for the services of Johnny Mize as their regular first baseman. Only a word from Manager Charley Dressen is awaited before the Reds acquire actual ownership. No overtures, it was said, will be made to Sunny Jim Bottomley, who walked out after demanding a higher salary. The Reds, after defeating Brooklyn 9 to 7 yesterday, were to move over to Lakeland tomorrow for a game with the Detroit Tigers.

Girl Scout News

Girl Scout Troop No. 4 met on Friday, March 28 in the basement of the Presbyterian church, Marjorie Preece read a letter from a girl in Dublin, Ireland to us. Included in the letter were some newspaper clippings and a bit of shamrock, the emblem of her country.

W. M. Reid, a member of our troop committee came in and in a delightful informal talk told us about the house wren and encouraged us to make wren houses from old tin cans. We hope Mr. Reid will be with us often. After patrol meeting and a game we closed our meeting.

CHANCES FOR BASEBALL 9 HERE VAGUE

Stoker Wants to Transfer Ash-
ville Club to This City; New
Holland In Field

Possibility of Circleville entering a baseball team in the Central Ohio loop appeared vague today although there is still a slight chance.

George Stoker, of Columbus, who owns the Ashville franchise in the loop, wants to transfer the team to this city with Frank A. Lynch, Coca Cola distributor, as the backer here. The biggest drawback to Stoker's plan, it is said, is the fact that there is no enclosed field in the city where admission could be charged for the contests.

Were there a suitable field here it is believed Lynch would take Stoker on his offer.

Rent Is Boosted

However, Stoker is making plans to play his team in Ashville at Community park. The rent has been boosted on the former Pickaway county, thus his desire to transfer the franchise.

He will have a good ball club

with Art Meier, Columbus right hander, pitching. Ed Trego, Beatty Walker, Red Trego, Whacker Davis, Chuck Koterba, Schick and others may be enrolled on Stoker's team. It is believed the team will be one of the best on the loop.

The league this year will include Ashville, Gahanna, New Albany, Grove City — Ashville's first opponent — Brice, Obetz, Columbus police and Lafayette, the latter a Madison-co entrant and a new member of the league.

Ben Ratner is president of the organization.

New Holland Busy

New Holland is going into baseball wholeheartedly this year with Shadel Saunders, athletic director at the high school, to be a "one-man nucleus". He is a hurler par excellent.

Others expected to try out for the squad are Byron Eby, Chillicothe; Wally Noon, Funk, Williams, Knapp and Carl Noon, who will pilot the team, all of Washington C. H., Terry Lyons, Gene Briggs and a number of other New Holland boys.

Ashville and New Holland will open the season April 14.

Mrs. Lucille Hey

This is a new photo of Mrs. Lucille Hey of Bogota, N. J., made as she prepared to plead, "no defense" on a charge of conspiracy to kill her husband, Russell Hey. Hey was pushed over a 200-foot cliff by two youths during a fake hold-up and miraculously escaped injury when he landed on a ledge 15 feet from the top. Hey refused to believe that his pretty wife conspired to end his life.

Let's Get Acquainted!

...perhaps you haven't used a Want Ad lately. Maybe you have used one and through lack of description or an inactive market, failed to get adequate results. Or possibly you've never used one at all. In any event, let's get acquainted this week. One object of "National Want Ad Week" is to increase results for advertisers. "More ads, more readers, more results" is the goal. Take advantage of the intensified reader interest all this week. Phone your ad today.

What a World of Interest You'll Find in Want Ads

A great many people read the Want Ads in this newspaper as religiously as they do the columns of news. Besides furnishing an excellent index of local conditions, they have found that these little ads are downright human, oftentimes revealing drama, or perhaps pathos.

Here are found real human interest stories—of, by and for the people of this city, expressed in their own words. Here are happy newlyweds seeking a cozy apartment... or a mother seeking to add to the family income by renting a spare room. Here is the man who has been advanced by his company to a better job in another city, and wants to sell his house and furniture... or an employer who has an excellent opportunity to offer to the right young man or woman. Here is the person seeking news of missing relatives, or the heart-broken lad who wants to find his lost dog, or the elderly couple who want to sell their little business, and retire, or the skilled workman who is seeking employment at his trade. Hope, faith, joy, sorrow are wrapped up in the Want Ads. Here's life—as it is lived. No wonder many people follow the Want Ads with intense interest from day to day!

You can never know what Want Ads will do for you until you read them and use them! A little investment in time devoted to reading them may save you many dollars on the car you have been wanting, or help you find the home of your dreams at a price within reach. Or, a few lines properly written and given enough insertions may sell that piece of real estate you considered "frozen," or rent an empty apartment, or turn surplus furniture into needed cash. Every day the Want Ads in this paper are renting houses, garages, rooms, apartments. They are finding jobs and workers. They are securing business for painters, paperhangers, music teachers, training schools. They are selling radios, furniture, refrigerators, pets, wearing apparel.

Frequently, all of us are prone to overlook the little things. But just remember this—these small ads, run at trifling cost, make a little money go a long, long way. Those who KNOW do not overlook the Want Ads because of their size. They profit from reading them, and from using them. Now, during "National Want Ad Week" is a good time for YOU to get the habit.

ses. requiring at the same time that the interest be paid. This is the so-called bond moratorium plan, which should be made permissive and not mandatory.

From General Fund

"3. For the additional six million dollars necessary for old age pensions during the last six months of this year, I propose that this amount be appropriated directly from the general revenue fund and we will undertake to save enough out of the current budget to meet this added burden."

The current executive budget for the 1935-36 biennium called for appropriations from the general revenue fund totalling $51,659,487 or an increase of $8,700,000 over expenditures from the same source for the previous two years. There would still be an allowance in the budget for an increase of $2,700,000 after six millions was deducted for old age pensions.

Directing attention to bills already drafted to carry out his new financial program, Governor Davey appealed to the assemblymen to give them earnest consideration and expressed the hope they would be enacted into law promptly.

"I am sure," he said, "the members of the legislature will be glad to cooperate in meeting these unusual problems without new taxes."

This can be achieved, he contended, if the sales tax remains in its present form without new exemptions.

"If it is wise and proper, in your judgment," he told the legislature, "to exempt food and clothing from the provisions of the sales tax, it will then be necessary for you to levy an additional 24 million dollars of new taxes of some kind or kinds."

men of Ohio to watch the legislature and their representatives there. "This question of finance must be handled in a business-like manner and it is up to Ohio's business men to see that it is done," he declared. "The legislature doesn't want to vote new taxes but what else is there to do?"

Wrote Liquor Bill

Mr. Mosier, who as a member of the senate wrote the liquor control bill, announced that on Wednesday the department will have its first anniversary and is now completely out of debt. "All stores have been paid for and so has nearly $3,000,000 worth of stock. In addition $6,000,000 has been returned to the state in additional revenue. In lieu of this money," the lieutenant governor stated, "we might have invoked some new tax. There has been a lot of agitation to reduce the tax on liquor but I am firmly against that. If a man can afford to buy liquor he can afford to pay tax."

Mr. Mosier besides expressing himself clearly on all points he touched upon interspersed his re-

"WIFE SWAPPERS" ENGAGE IN FIGHT

HOLLYWOOD, April 2—Despite their assertion to police that "it was all a mistake," Walter Emerson, screen writer, and Barton Sewell, millionaire yachtsman, male principals in the sensational wife-swapping divorce case a few weeks ago, today were reported to be consulting attorneys regarding a fist encounter.

Stories of the fight varied widely.

It seemed certain, however, that Sewell was beaten while Emerson came out of the encounter without a mark.

Another Jap Cherry Tree Found in City

A story in The Herald yesterday indicated that the Japanese cherry tree now in bloom at the home of Mrs. N. G. Hamilton, 153 W. High-st., was perhaps the only tree of its kind in Pickaway-co.

That statement brought forth the information that there is another tree of the same family in the front yard at the home of Miss Jimmie Dungan, 126 E. Mill-st. It is now in full bloom and a large number of visitors attest to its beautiful appearance.

Washington Merry-go-round

Old Guards—have put forward a different choice.

Arguing that the chief need of the President is an experienced political go-between and manipulator they suggested that he draft Secretary Dan Roper from the Cabinet for the job.

To persuade Roper to relinquish his adored cabinet post it was proposed that he be given the title of "Assistant to the President."

The President has indicated to several intimates that his first choice is Walker, whom he regards highly, but expresses doubt that he could persuade him to accept the appointment.

Peeved

Democratic members of the exclusive Jefferson Island Club are privately peeved at the President.

At considerable expense they added to their clubhouse—located on a beautiful island in lower Chesapeake Bay—a new wing especially equipped for the accommodation of F. D. R. It was widely announced at the time that the President would soon pay a visit to the place.

But although it is only a few hours distant from the Capital and although his quarters have been kept ready for instant use, he has given no sign of going there.

A guest visiting the Island last week-end reported much caustic comment on the President's slighting of the club's invitation.

"I wonder why he doesn't want to come here," one member remarked.

"Maybe it is because there are too many Democrats around," observed another.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

SPARRING FOR ADVANTAGE

Bidding went: South, 1-No Trump; North, 2-Diamonds; South, 2-No Trumps; North, 3-No Trumps, ending the auction with neither member of the declaring side holding a trick in spades.

The opening lead was the 6 of spades. East's Q won the trick. The K won the next trick. Back came the 8 of spades. West thought that his chance to defeat the contract was nil if he won the 4 spade tricks, then had to lead. So he dropped the 1 under his partner's K, hoping that East would hold the 8 of spades and hold the trick, so that he would be forced to lead a heart up to dummy's watchfulness. It was a very bold play on West's part, but the declarer saw through it. Sure enough East held the 8 of spades and led it. When West dropped his 7, his partner led the 3 of hearts. The declarer went on with his Ace, depending upon his ability to squeeze West in case that player held both the K of hearts and the Q of clubs.

Five diamond tricks were run off taking play through the ninth trick and forcing discards from all other players. South let go both his hearts, but dummy's J of hearts forced West to hold the K. West had to let go the guard to his K of hearts and one club, leaving the Q of that suit liable to capture.

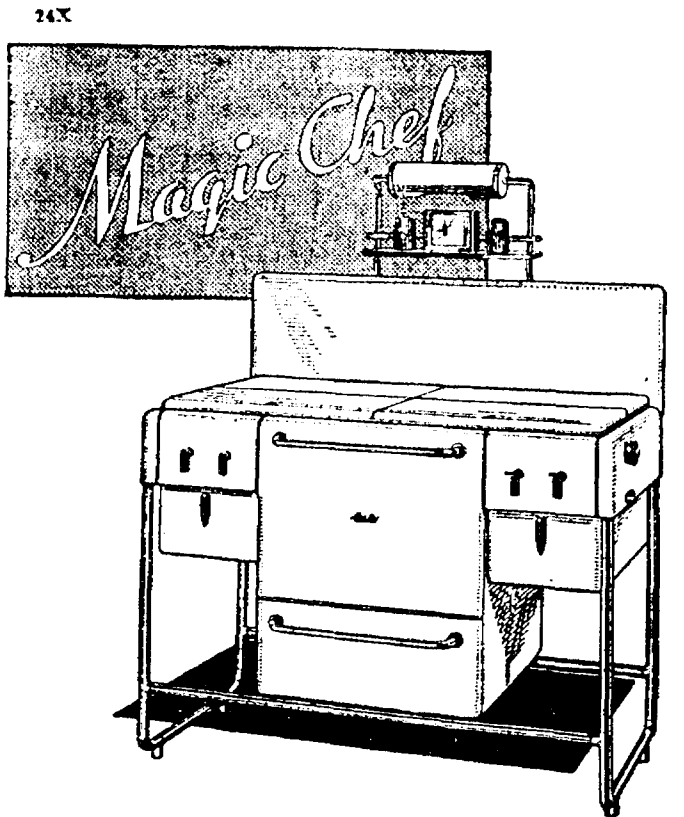

At the tenth trick a low club was led from dummy. The Ace won. The 9 was led back. As South expected West's Q fell to dummy's K and the 10 of clubs was led back to declarer's J. West had to discard, but he knew that South held the last missing spade, so West let go his good heart and made only the fourth trick in spades, just as he would have done had he not blocked that suit intentionally.

ses requiring at the same time that the interest be paid. This is the so-called bond moratorium plan, which should be made permissive and not mandatory.

From General Fund

"3. For the additional six million dollars necessary for old age pensions during the last six months of this year, I propose that this amount be appropriated directly from the general revenue fund and we will undertake to save enough out of the current budget to meet this added burden."

The current executive budget for the 1935-36 biennium called for appropriations from the general revenue fund totalling $51,659,487, or an increase of $8,700,000 over expenditures from the same source for the previous two years. There would still be an allowance in the budget for an increase of $2,700,000 after six millions was deducted for old age pensions.

Directing attention to bills already drafted to carry out his new financial program, Governor Davey appealed to the assemblymen to give them earnest consideration and expressed the hope they would be enacted into law promptly.

"I am sure," he said, "the members of the legislature will be glad to cooperate in meeting these unusual problems without new taxes."

This can be achieved, he contended, if the sales tax remains in its present form without new exemptions.

"If it is wise and proper, in your judgment," he told the legislature, "to exempt food and clothing from the provisions of the sales tax, it will then be necessary for you to levy an additional 24 million dollars of new taxes of some kind or kinds."

Wrote Liquor Bill

Mr. Mosier, who as a member of the senate wrote the liquor control bill, announced that on Wednesday the department will have its first anniversary and is now completely out of debt. "All stores have been paid for and so has nearly $3,000,000 worth of stock. In addition $6,000,000 has been returned to the state in additional revenue. In lieu of this money," the lieutenant governor stated, "we might have invoked some new tax. There has been a lot of agitation to reduce the tax on liquor but I am firmly against that. If a man can afford to buy liquor he can afford to pay tax."

Mr. Mosier besides expressing himself clearly on all points he touched upon interspersed his re-

"WIFE SWAPPERS"

ENGAGE IN FIGHT

HOLLYWOOD, April 2—Despite their assertion to police that "it was all a mistake," Walter Emerson, screen writer, and Barton Sewell, millionaire yachtsman, male principals in the sensational wife-swapping divorce case a few weeks ago today were reported to be consulting attorneys regarding a fistic encounter.

Stories of the fight varied widely. It seemed certain, however, that Sewell was beaten while Emerson came out of the encounter without a mark.
